OLD NACOGDOCHES FORT

THE ROCK FOR IT WAS QUARRIED NEAR THAT PLACE.

Some Interesting Facts Regarding the Historic Old Structure-How It Was Erected.

To the Editor of The Post. In The Post of June 2 is a picture and history of the old stone fort at Nacogdoches. The writer states that "it was built of coarse red rock, some of which weight from 150 to 200 pounds. The most rigic search has till this date failed to discover where this rock was quarried There is no such rock in many leagues of Nacogdoches," As a native of old Na Total 70 cogdoches, having been bor; there seventy one years ago, under the shadow of the old stone fort. I beg to correct the writer of Tasl article, and to request the Nacog-doches correspondent of The Post to cross the bridge, or the old ford above the bridge on the La Nana creek east of Naegdoches, and go up the stream about 300 yards to the slope of the hill; he will

LADIES OF THE MACCABEES, San Jacinto hive, No. 25.—I feel that it will interest all to know with what dispatch your lodge pays death claims and would state that on May 10 my dear and loving wife passed away, and claim was ferwarded, as in usual in such cases, and on June 26 I received the full amount of insurance, which I feel will be interesting to them who are members and also those who are not members. I certainly feel that all should encourage such a henevolent organization, and I herewith extend my thanks for the promptness in which the claim was paid. Respectfully, G. C. Eisemans,

PERSONAL.
